

Raylene Yung, U.S. General Services Administration (GSA)

Raylene Yung serves as the Executive Director of the Technology Modernization Fund (TMF) Program Management Office at the U.S. General Services Administration (GSA). The TMF is an innovative investment program that is transforming the way the federal government delivers secure, user-centric, and cost effective technology services to the American people.

Yung has more than thirteen years of technology experience in the private sector, government, and for non-profit organizations. As a member of the Biden-Harris Transition team, she identified key policy priorities for the Administration with a critical technical focus. Previously, Yung served as the co-founder and CEO of the U.S. Digital Response, a nonprofit initiative which has provided support to hundreds of state and local government partners in areas such as vaccination equity, unemployment insurance, housing security, and food access. In the private sector, she served in a variety of executive leadership roles in Engineering and Product Development. She holds a B.S. and a M.S. in Computer Science from Stanford University and served as a Tech Policy Fellow at the Aspen Institute.